2020 YEAR IN REVIEW

Projects and their locations are identified on the back panel.
FROM THE CHAIRMAN and CEO
Bill Morton

We are forecasting to reach $1.2 billion in sales against a goal of $1.45 billion for 2021. While that is only 85% of our goal, the good news is that several of those RFPs will have potential for the top this year and could be served in 2021. As a result, we will enter 2021 with the highest sales backlog in our history, at $4 billion. Our current projection for revenue for the year is $1.16 billion against our objective of $1.2 billion. Our total revenue backlog will be $1.6 billion as we enter 2021. This gives us a solid base of revenue for planning in 2021. Thanks to everyone for all the hard work in producing a very good year for Robins & Morton. By the time you receive this, we will have completed our business planning sessions for 2021. Based on our goals, our expectations are for an outstanding 2021. Along with a healthy sales increase, we should have the largest backlog ever in our 135-year history. We truly believe the future growth potential will continue with our company.

There is an article in this NewsCenter highlighting the work of our Strategic Planning Group. I want to compliment them on the hard work and insight they have brought to our strategic planning efforts. As you know, we deferred the planned opening of our Tampa office to 2021. Todd Watson has completed the planning necessary for the office and our expectation is for a formal opening during the second quarter of 2021. It is necessary to see this new growth initiative in the current environment.

Some major milestones for 2020:

- We achieved a Customer Satisfaction rating of 90% of the 11 projects surveyed, one achieved 100%.
- In March, we contributed to our profit-sharing plan for the 32nd year in a row.
- We had 3,600 attendees in the Training for Excellence program, with 115 subjects.
- We received 18 first place ABC Excellence in Construction Awards (See the award section for a complete list).

It looks like 2020 is finally coming to an end, having been one of the most tumultuous years in our company’s history. Despite all the external influences created by the pandemic, political realities, and many social issues, we have maintained a positive long-term perspective. A pretty good year for Robins & Morton. We are close to achieving many of our anticipated business goals related to safety, sales, revenue and profit and have set the stage for a successful outlook for the coming year.

Recently, we made a remarkable accomplishment in the area of safety. During the month of October, we had a single reported safety incident throughout the enterprise, a total of 85 projects and 276,600 man-hours worked during that month. The single incident was minor and did not result in a recordable or lost workday. It is phenomenal that we won so many contracts with only a single incident but, more importantly, it is a testament to the success of our safety culture.

We often asked ourselves over the past several years, how do we get the true safety message to our craft professionals who work, day after day on our projects? How do we let them know the importance, both technically and operationally, of the decisions they make every day in a challenging environment? Using this as a basis of thought, one could begin to comprehend: How do we get the message on the right level to the right target audience? How do we share that message and share it in an effective way? Most importantly, how do we communicate the message of appreciation to all of our team members so that we all know the value we are bringing?

Consider the following “fun facts” of accomplishments we have made in the year 2020:

- Our operations coordinators Katie Scott and Stephanie Challenger managed the relocation of 112 families this year, not including self-movers by many of our people. Thanks to those who sacrificed in moving around to support our projects and our coordinators for making the transitions easy.
- Our risk management team processed the prequalification of 850 trade contractors in 2020, assuring solid resources for our projects.
- Our marketing department responded to more than 105 RFPs, qualifying for the short lists on 43 of those and landing 20 projects.
- Our COVID committee developed a full COVID-19 protocol in a week’s time and executed it.
- Our accounting team processed more than 750 accounting flow.
- Our preconstruction and estimating team prepared 186 full estimates for RFPs, qualifying for the top five short lists.
- Our contracts and legal team led by Scott Merritt reviewed more than 52 projects and subcontracts.
- Our IT department answered more than 140 media mentions nationally and regionally.
- Our HR/learning and development team conducted 120 classes held as large groups and 112 classes held as small groups. More than 1,550 people did not pass more than 120 final inspections for interim and final occupancies.
- Under Jennifer Lacy’s leadership, we developed an accountability and organizational structure within our Building Forward culture this year, setting 550 goals for the entire company. Of the 112 families we relocated this year, not including self-movers by many of our people.

And finally, Robins & Morton donated more than $1.2 million to 128 charitable organizations. This is in addition to the hundreds of individual donations and service hours made privately by our own people. I hope you get the picture of the many things that we have done well in 2020 to make our company and our projects successful. This is not a day to rest on our laurels but to take a lot of energy to move this machine we call Robins & Morton.

As we move into 2021, several of the policies have been rewritten and are awaiting final approval, and the team continues working with applicable departments to finalize the final proposals. Policies and Procedures move into the final approval stage, they are also being updated as needed to meet our new brand standards.

So that’s 2020! We are looking forward to all the projects that we have thrown at you. We have a great holiday season and the time to get the message to your family and friends of how much you appreciate them.

FROM THE PRESIDENT and COO
Todd Watson

As 2020 comes to a close, both the executive strategic planning committee and the strategic planning group were able to accomplish a number of initiatives. Below is a brief summary of what each group was able to complete this year.

Executive Strategic Planning Committee

In 2020, the executive strategic planning committee continued working on their four areas of focus: creating infrastructure to base our people more regionally, expanding our business unit management model, focusing growth with micro-offices and creating clarity surrounding the bonus program.

Company Growth & Expansion

In May, Robins & Morton added its eighth full-service office with the opening of our San Antonio location. The addition of this office allows us to expand our presence in the city and surrounding Texas market, and in the future, we will be opening a Tampa office in the second quarter of 2021 to continue growing our presence in the Tampa and West Coast markets.

Business Unit Management: One goal of the executive planning committee was to review and refine descriptions and the jobsite people and planning campaign. In addition to departmental career paths, we now have multiple new roles within the company allowing for additional growth and opportunity. These include project director, senior division superintendent, division superintendent, and construction coordinator.

Project Management: In 2020, the Technology teams worked through several advancements including the development of the IT Disaster Recovery Plan, which is currently in the testing phase; on the construction of the corporate technology department building; and the operational and corporate technology teams merged with David Pratt now serving as the newly appointed department director.

In addition to our executive strategic planning committee’s accomplishments, the strategic planning group continued their work on the second phase of the building forward culture. Moving into 2021, the focus of our people policies and procedures will be revising policies and procedures, and improving work/life balance.

People, Learning, Growth & Development

Throughout the year, this group has focused its efforts on enabling the team member experience in five key categories: hiring, assessments, development and retention. Some of the key categories included the development of the career team training allowing team members to prepare for professional certifications and improving the hourly team member review process. Some of the development tasks included continuing the program to incentivize select promotions and certifications, and developing an advancement strategy for our entry level team members. Lastly, the retention tasks were largely focused around developing a framework for our group diversity initiatives.

Policies & Procedures: This group continues to take on the challenging task of reviewing and updating our policies and procedures to ensure they serve as a valuable resource for our jobs while also adapting and updating this as needed to meet our new brand standards.

Work/Life Balance: This group’s focus is to find ways to feasibly integrate better balance into Robins & Morton’s culture. One of the items they have completed and implemented this year include the holiday holiday and a new top home allowance. The team is still working through the remaining allowances and Procedures move into the final approval stage, they are also being updated as needed to meet our new brand standards.

The Robin’s & Morton Construction Field Laboratory opened at Auburn University.

The Barbara Wilson Mentorship Program began with three participants.

Completion of the USACE Miami Beach Convention Center Alternative Care Facility was accomplished in 11 days.

We achieved a May 2020 opening for our San Antonio office.

We completed the addition/renovation of the corporate office.

We had more than 140 media mentions nationally and regionally.

This year will go down in history as one of the most challenging for both our nation and Robins & Morton. We have been fortunate to maintain a level of sales and revenue equal to 2019, something many companies have not been able to do. We truly believe the strength of the healthcare industry, but we also were successful in other segments of the construction business. So, I believe our success is a result of the hard work and dedication of our people. Thank you for your individual efforts to satisfy our clients and help us maintain our strength as a company.

With the optimistic 2021 outlook, we should all have a joyful holiday season and enjoy spending time with family and friends.

Building For Tomorrow: Final Results

At Robins & Morton, we believe in the impact of what we do. Whether it’s building or serving our communities, we know it’s more than our job to make a difference: it’s who we are. It’s been a roller coaster of a year, so in August we challenged our team members to take their community service a step further in the fourth quarter. Inspired to close out 2020 with some good news and to build a future we could all be proud of, our team got to work.

In just three short months, more than 123 employees across eight states and 26 cities came together to volunteer, fundraise and bring awareness to challenges facing their neighbors.

They built homes for Habitat for Humanity, distributed food boxes and brought smiles and support to those facing difficult times.

The final results include more than 424 volunteer hours and $17,937 raised for 52 organizations.

A big thank you to all who shared our Giving With Purpose commitment with your communities.

Green Globes is a rating assessment and building certification program that helps new construction projects, as well as existing buildings, meet their sustainable design and operational goals. Its rating system recognizes projects on a scale of one to four Globes, based on a percentage of total points.

Wofford College’s Chandler Center for Environmental Studies is a three-story, 17,535-square-foot facility featuring laboratory, lecture, and office spaces. The design goal was to create a building that reflected the ideals behind the subject matter it worked to teach. Several unique features include an exposed ceiling made of sustainably sourced cross-laminated timber; a cistern that captures rainwater from the roof to irrigate the landscape and a greenhouse; dashboards that monitor the building’s energy use; lightwells, glass and glazing to provide a profusion of natural light; and solar panels to supply the building’s energy needs, including HVAC systems, during the day.
